MAN KILLED DURING FIERCE BATTLE AT JUAREZ YESTERDAY

Rebels Enter Town and Take Practically all Approaches---Revolt Spreading in Southern Mexico---Diaz Refuses to Resign.

Special to Telegram.

El Paso, Texas, May 9.—After an all day assault Madero rushed into Juarez late this afternoon, controlling practically all the city and the approaches. He expects an unconditional surrender at daybreak. Practically the entire town with the exception of the churches and the bull ring are in the possession of the revolutionists.

The dead on the federal side are estimated at from seventy-five to 150, some being Americans. The wounded are believed to exceed two hundred. Of the revolutionists 150 are reported killed.

The position of the government forces seem well nigh impregnable, but the forces of the revolutionists are overwhelming. A newspaper correspondent, Gerald Brandon, carried to General Navarro a letter in which Madero demanded the surrender of the place. The federal leader refused and the battle continued.

Late tonight a truce was declared in order that the wounded might receive attention and the dead be properly buried.

Juarez Is Ruined.

Juarez, May 9.—Juarez is ruined. The place caught on fire today, so fierce was the firing. The citizens panic stricken fled and sought shelter across the river in El Paso. Carbajal, the peace envoy, asked Madero to cease firing, but he refused.

The battle continued for sixteen hours and the wounded remained in agony in the burning sun throughout the day until they were removed across the border. The church in which the federalists were stationed was battered all day but could not be taken.

General Navarro is said to have mined a number of houses in the city to be set off when the rebels have occupied them.

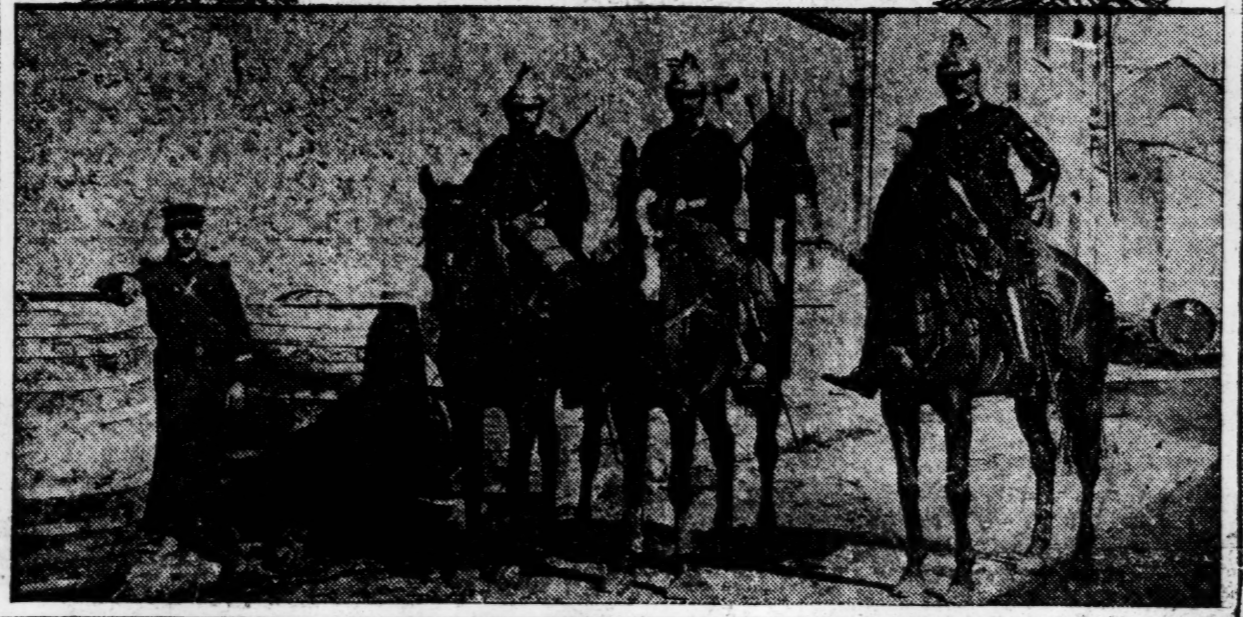

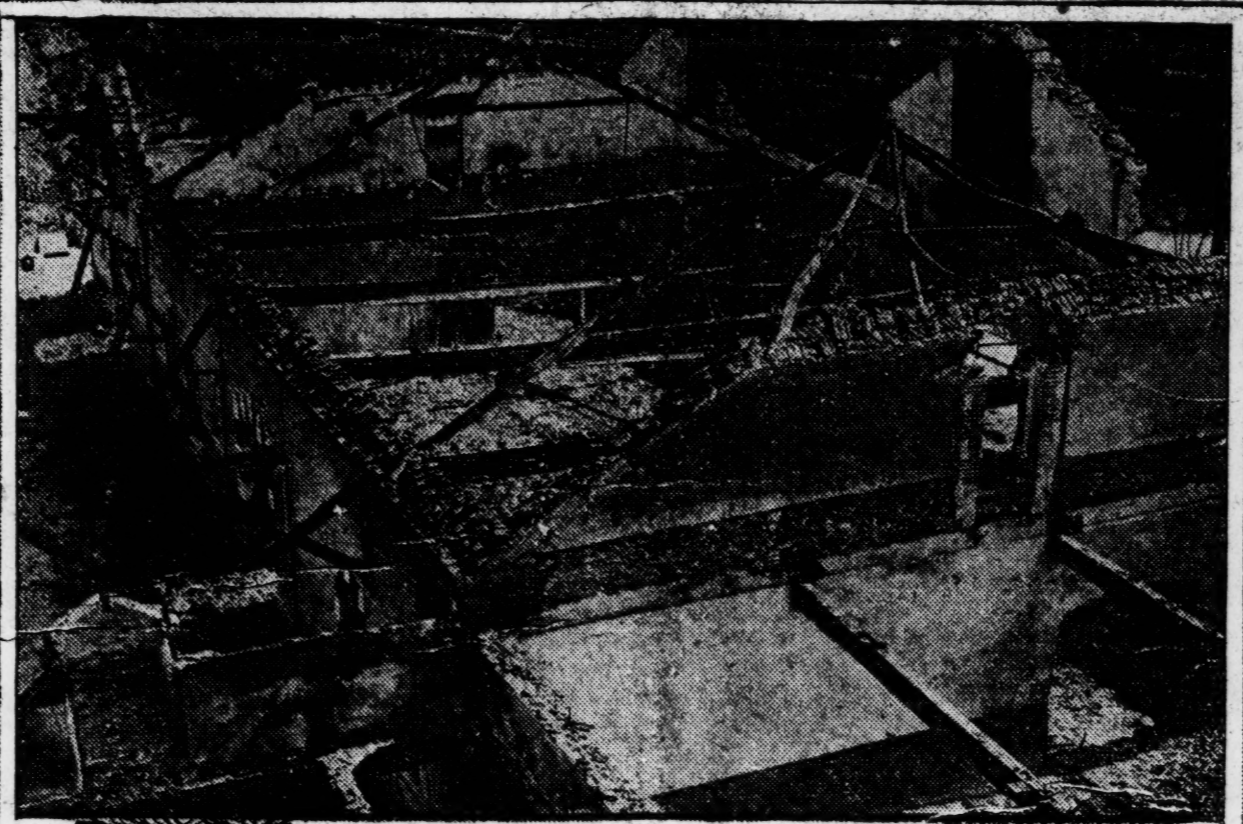

Revolt Spreading.

Mexico City, May 9.—The revolt is rapidly spreading throughout Southern Mexico as the news of Diaz's refusal to resign is becoming circulated. Diaz again refused to heed the advice of his council and throw up his office today.

Washington, May 9.—"Use your best efforts to enforce the neutrality laws and urge upon the people of El Paso the necessity of keeping as much as possible out of the zone of fire."

These instructions have been sent by General Wood, chief of staff of the army, to Colonel Stever, commanding the American troops at El Paso, Texas.

Bloodshed and Sacking by the Rioters In France's Famous Wine Growing Departments.

A number of champagne storehouses have been wrecked and several lives sacrificed in the so called "wine riots" in France. The present trouble is the outgrowth of the old rivalry between the departments of Marne and Aube as to which should be alone entitled to label as champagne the wine they produce. For a quarter of a century the outbreaks have been intermittent. During the past three months the rioting has been more frequent, following a government decision excluding the sparkling wine of Aube from the champagne class. Thousands of vineyard owners and workers have joined in the demonstrations. They have made bonfires of tax demand notes stuffed in grape baskets, flown the red flag over their municipal buildings and burned effigies of their so called enemies. In the above pictures are shown troops guarding a barrel of champagne and a view from above of the wrecked premises of Ayala & Co.

STATE BUILDING COMMISSION MET IN RALEIGH YESTERDAY

Plans for the Administration Building Discussed and Sub Committee Appointed to Recommend Location.

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, May 9.—The State Building Commission for the erection of the $250,000 fire-proof administration building, for which bonds were provided by the recent Legislature, organized here today with the election of Hon. Ashley Horne, Clayton, as chairman, and William E. Springer, Wilmington, as secretary.

There was a lengthy conference by the commissioners with Governor Kitchin and the members of the Council of State for a thorough review of the work that is ahead of the commission. It was found that State Treasurer B. R. Lacy has already advertised for the bids for the $250,000 bond issue, the bids to be opened July 1 and that he has also arranged for a small loan to meet any expenses of the building commission pending the sale of the bonds. All members of the commission were here for the initial meeting—Col. Horne, Mr. Springer, Gen. J. S. Carr, Durham; J. Elwood Cox, High Point; J. A. Long, Roxboro; A. S. Roscoe, Bertie county; W. L. Parsons, Rockingham.

The commission at the afternoon session appointed a sub-committee, consisting of Chairman Horne, Secretary Springer, J. A. Long and J. Elwood Cox to look especially into the question of location of the administration building, and to recommend a clerk for the commission, to be in charge of the Raleigh office and other matters. This sub-committee meets here again Saturday and will make recommendations to the full commission at a meeting to be called within two weeks.

Deputy Collector J. P. H. Adams of Johnston county, says that he and officers associated with him have broken up twenty-five blockade distilleries in Johnston county since January 1. He destroyed four in the neighborhood of the town of Benson during the past week.

The commencement of the North Carolina College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts will be held May 28 to 30, the commencement sermon by Rev. David J. Woods, of Blacksburg, Va., on Sunday; alumni oration Monday night by W. D. Faucette, New York; annual address Monday night by Geo. D. Alden, Boston. Tuesday will be commencement day with orations by graduates and awards, honors and diplomas. There will be class day exercises Monday afternoon on the lawn and a reception late Monday night. Mr. Faucette is of the class of 1901 and engineering class and is now assistant to the president of the Seaboard Air Line. Judge Alden, prominent jurist of Boston, is a lineal descendant of John Alden, but "knows how to speak for himself."

Lieutenant Governor W. C. Newland spent some time today with Governor Kitchin urging upon him that he pardon Thomas B. Whitson, the Mitchell county man who nearly twenty years ago was sentenced to be hanged for murder, was commuted to thirty years in prison, escaped four years later and was for sixteen years a citizen of Kentucky, having married and settled down in successful business at Letcher, Ky. Three months ago he was taken away from his family and business and brought back to the penitentiary here to resume the service of the sentence. The killing of which he was guilty was the outcome of a family feud of long standing. Many people in Kentucky are interested in the pardon and letters and marked newspapers come to the executive office in great numbers insisting on the pardon. The commutation of sentence to imprisonment instead of death was by Governor Carr.

Governor Kitchin and Commissioner of Agriculture W. A. Graham went this afternoon to Statesville where the governor will deliver the memorial address tomorrow. During the afternoon he and Commissioner Graham will inspect the Irrell State test farm near Statesville. This being the most successful farm that the State Board of Agriculture is maintaining. Thursday the governor will deliver the address for the unveiling of the Confederate monument at Lincolnton and Major Graham will also make an address.

The Wake County Good Roads Improvement Council was formed here today with Dr. R. H. Lewis as chairman and W. A. Cooper as secretary. A resolution was passed by the council calling on the Wake commissioners to order an election throughout the county to be held August 31 on the question of the issuance of $300,000 bonds for road improvement and stipulating that there be a new registration for the bond election. There was also a resolution to the effect that the council proceed at once with the organization of township and precinct good road councils, these to be gotten in working order in time to help along the campaign for the good road bonds.

The board of directors of the State School for the Blind in annual session just held here reelected John E. Ray superintendent and made the preliminary arrangements for the school commencement which will take place June 3. There will be six graduates.

Capt. S. A. Ashe and R. T. Gray have purchased the Raleigh Hosiery mill, operated for a long while by Capt. Ash and associates. It has been closed for several months and was sold under fore-

Then the veterans will repair to the Smith Memorial building where a sumptuous dinner will be served by the Daughters of the Confederacy. Afterwards the entire membership of the camp, or as many as care to do so, will attend the moving picture show at the Ottoway, where Manager McCall has prepared a special program for them.

Murphy and other prominent citizens of the city will also make addresses.

GRAND LODGE OF ODD FELLOWS IN SESSION IN WINSTON-SALEM

Sixty-Eighth Annual Meeting Began Yesterday Afternoon---Many Delegates Gathered in Twin City for Meeting.

Winston-Salem, May 9.—This city is in the hands of the three-link men today, as it is the day for the opening of the three-day session of the sixty-eighth annual convention of the Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. of North Carolina. The crowd began coming yesterday afternoon, and scores arrived today. It is estimated that there are 300 Odd Fellows in the city and others are expected tomorrow.

The first session was called to order at 3:30 this afternoon by Grand Master Frank D. Hackett, of North Wilkesboro. This session was held for the purpose of conferring the Grand Lodge degree and organizing for the session.

A class of children from the Odd Fellows Home, at Goldsboro, accompanied by Superintendent E. Leff Wagoner, are the guests of the local lodges during the session. These little ones come from a home which will be very much discussed during the present convention, for the board of trustees are recommending that a class from the home be allowed to go on the road during the summer to make money for the support of the institution.

The various committees of the Grand Lodge have their work well in hand, and it has been planned to present in a systematic way all the matters of importance that are to come up for attention. The greatest questions concerning the general welfare of the order in State will command attention and consideration during the meeting, and no one can tell now what will be done.

This is the 68th annual session of the Grand Lodge, and more than 500 visitors are expected to be present, representing the tremendous host of Odd Fellows throughout the State.

TALKING ABOUT THE GREENSBORO COMMISSION.

For the information of its readers
The Telegram is printing the comment of State papers in regard to the inauguration of commission government in this city. Some of this comment is sensible and some of it is the worst sort of rot; but it will always be the policy of this newspaper to give both sides of all questions, hence we expect to publish what is said in favor of commission government and what is said in opposition to it, as well as the criticisms of our own commission and what is said in approval of its actions. It is due the readers of The Telegram and the public in general that both sides should be presented and not the one side of the matter which is advocated by this newspaper.

Under the former ownership The Telegram advocated the adoption of the commission in this city and the present owners of the paper heartily favor this form of municipal government and desire to see it prove a success here, but the personal opinions of the editor of The Telegram have nothing to do with the publishing of the news, and the editor of this paper will not attempt either to suppress the news or to squelch those people whose opinions do not conform to his own views.

Finally, we advise the commissioners of Greensboro to keep cool—keep cool under fire and under criticism—because they are going to be criticised, both by the enemies of commission government and, at times, by many of those who favor this plan. Let the commissioners go ahead in a business-like way in the discharge of their duties according to the laws which now govern the city.
If they do this they will succeed, as they have the ability and the capacity to make good. They will do well to keep cool, however, and not allow themselves to be unduly worried by criticism or by the difficulties met with in the administration of their offices. Otherwise, they may find themselves in the condition of the former general manager of Staunton, Va., whose arduous duties, coupled with temperamental characteristics, su-perinduced a case of nervous prostration and made his resignation necessary.

THE DISHONEST CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

The dishonesty of the Congressional Record is well known to a great many people of this country, but doubtless there are those who still believe the truth of all they read in this alleged record of events transpiring in Congress.
There are many people who pride themselves on their wisdom because they refuse to believe in newspapers and who discount most of the statements made in these daily records of world happenings, but the most unreliable newspaper published in the United States is the soul of honesty compared with the Congressional Record. The Record is made dishonest through the "leave to print" practice, by which method hundreds of speeches which are never delivered in either branch of Congress are published in the Record as having been spoken by their authors to intensely interested fellow members and crowded and applauding galleries. Condemning the "leave to print" practice the New York World says:

"As an authentic report of what is said and done in the House and Senate the Congressional Record is almost valueless. Through the 'leave to print' abuse it has become a padded and dishonest publication issued at the expense of the Government. Instead of adhering to the stenographers' notes, it is a huge advertising medium for politicians who use it as cheap means of selfpuffery. They do not intend their printed speeches to have any influence upon the action of either house, for neither house ever hears them and probably few members read them except the authors.

But they are passed off later in the districts of members as contributions to the debates of Congress.

"As a record of the debates of Congress the Congressional Record is wholly unreliable and designedly falsified by unanimous consent. The expense alone of printing and franking undelivered or padded speeches of members of Congress would fully justify abolishing the practice of 'leave to print.' The dishonesty of the thing, if it were paralleled by the newspapers, would make the politicians in Congress themselves cry out against the crime of 'faking' and the dishonesty of the press."

In comparing the Congressional Record with the average newspaper of the country, it will be found that the newspaper desires to print nothing but the truth, while there is a studied effort by Congress to fill the Record with fake speeches. Newspapers occasionally make errors and print things which are untrue, but their efforts are always directed to securing the truth and to an endeavor to avoid errors. They do not willfully fake their readers. Congress places before the country a bad example in the "leave to print" abuse, which is an unwarranted expense to the government and which makes the nation's official published record of the proceedings of its law making bodies an unreliable record of events and a dishonest journal.

Detective Burns is winning a Sherlock Holmes reputation as an uncoverer of mysteries.

President Porfirio Diaz wishes it to be understood that he will act as his own fireman when he is fired and that he will also select the time and place.

The Concord Tribune announces the

This looks like prosperity for the Tribune.

Spain has a deficit of sixteen million dollars. Spain ought to try commission government and a business ad-

President Diaz says he will resign as President of Mexico as soon as peace is restored. Perhaps the old man will change his mind when peace is restored.
However, he is not to be censured for refusing to retire "under fire."

The authorities of Radcliffe College have declared that commencement dresses must be plain. It would seem that anybody capable of conducting a college for women would know that the purpose of commencement is not to display plain clothes.

The Columbia State is still worrying about the birthplace of Andrew Jackson. The frequency with which the State renews this discussion seems to indicate that there is some foundation for the claim of the Mecklenburg Daughters of the Revolution.

Dr. Wiley has blacklisted two dozen headache remedies, such as are manufactured and sold by the "patent" medicine companies of the country. The Doctor some time ago blacklisted the most potent cause of headaches in this country—that is the bad booze which is so common nowadays.

The World says New York prefers a suffragist parade every time to a Marathon race. Certainly! The same would be true in any city of the country. A Marathon race is a tame affair compared to three thousand marching women, some of whom, the World tells us, lost their pumps while parading down Fifth avenue and had to drop out of line until they could adjust their footwear.

Congressman Cannon, commonly known as "Uncle Joe," announces that the whole secret of the reciprocity argument with Canada is that the newspapers want free print paper and President Taft has simply surrendered to the power of the press. If this is true, the newspapers have accomplished something of lasting benefit for the country, provided the reciprocity agreement is finally adopted. Reciprocity will help all classes of the people as well as newspaper men, and that will help the country. Again—the newspapers are entitled to some consideration from the government and from the country. From the standpoint of profiting by legislation the newspaper men of this country have received less consideration and less benefit than any other class of business men.

HE CAN'T EAT MISTAKES

(By CARA REESE.)

You cannot expect the man to eat up your mistakes. The potatoes are heavy with saltiness, the omelet looks as though it had been mixed with shoe polish, the coffee is unclarified mud.

There is such a thing as covering over or covering up mistakes, but to ask your friends and relatives to dispose of the same through the process of eating is going too far in the way of doctor bills and indigestion. He has a right to let the mistake stand. Your part is to try to retrieve the culinary blunder and not make the same mistake a second time. For the purpose of securing efficiency it is necessary to penalize a mistake. This is why the full plate is left and he rises contemptuously and turns from the room without the customary cares. The time has gone for heroic gulping of amateur efforts. The mistake stands until you do better work.

The small girl who makes mistakes in the sewing and needlework must retrace her efforts so to speak; she must patiently rip out and commence over after the expert judgment has condemned the attempt. The mistake which is overlooked or winked at or condoned only leads to greater and more glaring errors. You will be serving up burnt puddings, scorched and tasteless salads next.

The handiwork must be taken apart, the machinery must be overhauled, the books carefully audited in order to overcome mistakes. The dropped stitch in the knitting leaves its glaring open trail in the pattern until the careless work is retrieved. Mistakes in judgment, in transaction, in the buying, selling and the busy affairs of life must be straightened out as speedily as possible or the inevitable results.

But to ask or to expect anyone to eat up mistakes in order to conceal the errors is asking the limit in sympathy and endurance. Your better plan is to find out for yourself where the blunders lie and begin at that point to remedy affairs. It is just as easy to do one's allotted work without making mistakes as to have the work show repeatedly the same old errors. The secretary, or correspondent, or anyone in a clerical capacity who smiles cheerfully when an error in spelling, construction or accounting is pointed out, and makes no attempt thereafter to strive for correctness and accuracy, does not hold the position long. Likewise a covered up or a covered over mistake is a lasting menace and is liable to work disquietude.

But in your place as a housewife, to keep on making mistakes in the cookery is lamentable. In the first place the right method and the right way in culinary operations are ever the easiest for yourself and the results more acceptable to others. If you must practice on a potato or an egg or a biscuit for a week or two still persevere bravely until the potato, the egg and the biscuit are each properly cooked and served and as a wholesome bite. Master each dish in turn. Because your culinary mistakes are accepted with a smile during honeymoon days is not saying this will last. Learn to cook well as the easier, better plan. Even an angel will decline at last to swallow mistakes.

SOME LATE INVENTIONS

(By ROBERT SNOWDEN.)

Inventive geniuses are just now adding much to the gaiety of the nation.
While one is trying to get a device placed on the market which he calls the anti-snorer, and which when affixed to the face of the troublesome sleeper, so grips the mouth that he must breathe through his nose or die, another one has great faith in the possibilities of shoe lanterns, which can be easily affixed to boots by anyone who has to traverse dark streets late at night.

Fashioned something like a coffee pot, they certainly look a bit odd, but, as the inventor enthusiastically remarks, "Think of the jocular gleams they send forth. All you've got to do is to follow that gleam, and you will walk straight as a triquet, and never miss a step in the longest flight that ever connected a front door and a dark bed room."

Then there is the newest device for awakening the heavy sleeper—a bunch of tassels which are connected with a clock-work arrangement, and which overhang the sleeper's face, dropping on his countenance and tickling him at the time set by the clock. The advantage claimed for this invention over the ordinary alarm clock is that you must get out of bed to move the apparatus. You cannot switch it off your face like switching off the alarm of a clock.

Perhaps some of the most remarkable inventions are those connected with poultry farming. Several inventors have devised schemes to compel chickens to exercise. The old-fashioned method of making hens exercise is to scatter their food in straw, but the newer methods involve modified gymnasium apparatus, and are much more spectacular.
Of course, the hens do not willingly take gymnasium exercise, but they can be compelled to do it while eating.
The principle is the same in a score of inventions. There is a treadmill which may be adjusted according to the weight and agility of the fowl. By going fast enough, the bird eventually reaches the food, but must keep going in order to remain near the food. Inventors have, up the present, however, failed to provide an attachment for utilizing the waste energy in pumping water.

LIVING FOR SHOW

(By VIRGINIA HARLAN.)

I cannot understand a young married couple with real life before them, "living for show."

And yet so many young married couples do. The best thing about her servant is here cap and clean apron—they "look so nice." And the cap of the servant is her cap and clean apron—they get in the way (and often in the soup) and bother the wearer.

Can anything be more foolish than to do things just because such and such a person does them? There must be as well a drawing room as can be provided. It isn't wanted, really; but how could the world be faced without a drawing room?

The old, comfortable furniture that had to be sold dirt cheap to make room for the "proper" articles was fifty percent. more appropriate and rest giving, but what of that?

And in the district where the young couple go to live, probably dinners are given, select little affairs. Therefore, the young couple, who have just come into the place, must follow suit. It means worry, endgearing of brains, unwarrantable stretching out of a cramped income. But there you are. It's the thing.

Unless one can really afford to go on as the others do, it is foolish to run into debt just for the sake of appearances and what others might think.
Just have the people in to see you that really like your simple way of doing things, and if a cup of tea and cake is all that you can give them, you would honestly know that they were coming for the pleasure they found in your company.

Whatever "fashion" or custom has somehow been set for the inhabitants of the neighborhood in which you live, don't follow it unless it absolutely suits you to do so.

"Cut your coat according to your cloth," not only in the matter of the money you have, but in the greater matter of living your own life according to your mind. If you do otherwise, apart from anything else, you lose your rightful pride, your judgment of things, your confidence in yourself that sustains you against the troubles of life.

The material penalty for catching the "right thing" ever is obvious. The bills run up alarmingly. And isn't it the hardest thing in the world, once you have set a certain standard of financial expense, to step down from that standard, and to lop off such and such expensive items that have grown up, as it were in the night, almost without their being noticed? It takes remarkably strong willed people to do it.

THE KITCHEN

Cocanut Cake.

Boil half a gill of milk, and pour it over two ounces of desiccated cocanut, and stand aside to cool. Beat a quart of a pound of butter with six ounces of sugar to a cream.

Beat the whites and yolks of three eggs separately. Add half a pound of flour and the yolks of the eggs to the butter alternately, stir in the milk and cocanut, and beat well. Then stir in very lightly one small teaspoonful of baking powder and the whites of the eggs.

Pour into a tin lined with butter paper, and bake in a moderate oven for an hour and a quarter.

Tomato Pancakes.

Savory pancakes are very good. They are easily made by the following recipe:

Make the usual pancake batter, and stir in the desired flavoring with the stiffly beaten whites, either finely chopped parsley, mushrooms, ham, or grated cheese, as you wish.

These can be spread when ready with any mixture of fish, meat, or chicken, and serve dusted lightly with a pinch of salt, paprika, or with any rich gravy or sauce.

Make some pancakes, flavoring them with shallots and grated cheese. Serve them very hot, filled with the following:

Wash some spinach, boil in water when cooked drain and rub through a sieve, add to it an equal quantity of fine breadcrumbs, previously soaked in a small milk as they will take up, about two tablespoonfuls of grated parmesan cheese (according to the amount of spinach.)

Flavor it with pepper, salt, and a little grated nutmeg. Heat together, place a little of this mixture on each of the hot pancakes. Roll them up, pressing the edges well together.

Serve at once, very hot, with a good tomato sauce poured over them.

A Confederate Chicken Coop.

One day, nearly at the close of the war of '61, the torn and tattered remnant of a Confederate regiment was drawn up on parade and told by its colonel that the commanding general was to pay a visit of inspection on the following day. The soldiers were admonished to do their prettiest, said the colonel.

"Boys, brace up just as though your uniforms were brand new and as though you had the best on earth to eat, and plenty of it. We haven't any bugles left, but Smith there has a drum and it's a fine one, big as a barrel. Now Smith when I give the word tomorrow, you let her go for all she's worth."

True to program, on the next day the commanding general came, to inspect the poor, half starved fighters, and as he appeared in the distance the colonel shouted the command, "Present arms!" Then as the commanding officer drew near, the colonel shouted:

"Now, Smith, let her go!" and turned to salute the general.

Not a note came from the drum. The colonel, red in the face, turned towards the drummer and again shouted the order for music. Still the drum remained mute. Infuriated at the open disobedience of orders and in the presence of the commanding officer, the colonel rode down the line. As he reached the refractory drummer he shouted:

"Private Smith, what in h—l do you mean by not beating that drum?"

"I can't, Colonel," whispered Smith.
"The drum is full of chickens and half of 'em are for you."

The colonel paused but a moment before he shouted so that the general might hear: "Private Smith, if you were too sick to play that drum, why in h—l didn't you say so?"

NO TARIFF REDUCTION LIKELY DURING EXTRA SESSION

Standpatters Deliberately Packed Senate Finance Committee to Prevent Consideration of Tariff Reduction Measures.

Special Correspondence.

Washington, D. C., May 9.—The Senate committees have been fully formed and announced, and both branches of Congress are ready for the legislation of the extra session. The vital committee of the Senate, that on finance, is headed by Senator Boise Penrose, of Pennsylvania. Senators and Representatives Compared.

The United States Senate has only 92 members. The U. S. House of Representatives has 391 members, 4 1-4 times as many members as the Senate; and yet the two chambers of Congress have equal powers in shaping and vitalizing the legislation of the nation. So that, legislatively speaking, one Senator is equal to 4 1-4 Representatives.

But the Senate possesses treaty-ratifying and appointment-confirming powers, not shared by the House, which gives the Senate a rein on the Executive Department of Government; and these latter powers give a Senator a voice, weight and influence not wielded by a Representative. Hence, abstractly speaking, one Senator exercises the prestige, power and influence of at least five Representatives in the total powers and functions of government.

But either a Senator's or a Representative's relative influence on legislation is augmented or decreased materially and vitally by his committee assignments.

Committee Legislation.

Committees are the moulders and the censors of legislation. Theirs are legislative dissecting-rooms in which pruning-knives may be used with cunning and skill and at the dictate of special interests. Theirs are the dark-rooms of deliberation and the star-chambers of special privileges. Committees sit behind closed doors—in the sanctum sanctorum of legislation, not reached by the searchlights of publicity; and committee-legislation is easily susceptible of abuse.

An important truth was recently well expressed by Governor Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, when he said that "Legislation," as we get it nowadays, "is not conducted in the open. It is not threshed-out in open-debate upon the floors of our assemblies. It is, on the contrary, framed, digested and concluded in committee-rooms. It is in committee-rooms that legislation not desired by the interests dies. It is in committee-rooms that legislation desired by the interests is framed and brought forth."

Legislation always and everywhere should be conducted in the broad light of open publicity; but, in most legislative bodies, there is not enough open debate, in many cases, to disclose and uncover the real meaning and purpose of things. Clauses, which contain the whole gist and purpose of measures, too often lie quietly concealed and undiscovered till they become parts of statutes. Qualifying phrases, casual definitions, or technical classifications, not generally understood but containing the whole purposes and ends of measures, are too often covered-up in bills or resolutions, escape public notice, attract no special attention, are not expounded nor explained by those whose interests are most intimately and immediately concerned and benefited by them and become parts of laws to operate in the private interests of the favored few and against the private interests of the unsuspecting many till discovered in the courts only when it is too late to throttle the injustice that is too often perpetrated under forms of law. And yet, our modern legislation is largely committee-legislation; so that the general public has an interest, a keen and vital interest in the personnel of the important committees of the Senate and of the House of Representatives of the United States.

The Senate Committee on Finance. The one "On Finance" is the most important and powerful committee of the United States Senate. It is the "ways and means" committee of that august body. The Senate itself is powerless to consider any revenue measure without the consent of eight of the fifteen Senators who constitute its Finance Committee. Tariff-revision, an income tax, the pending Canadian reciprocity-agreement and the pending "Farmer's Bill" are all "revenue" measures; and, before the Senate may consider any one of these, a majority of its Finance Committee must consent to its being reported for that purpose. But the deafness of the regular Republican Senators to the demands of the people for substantial relief-legislation along revenue-lines in the form of tariff-reductions is made manifest in the fact that, in recently reforming the personnel of its Finance Committee, the Senate-standpatters appropriated to themselves eight of these places on this great committee and gave the tariff-reductionists only seven places on it. So that, before the majority of the Senate (who are tariffrevisionists) can consider any measure looking to that end, they must first secure the consent of these eight standpatters or of at least one of them who, combining with La Follette and six Democrats, may form a temporary majority for the purpose of permitting the Senate to consider such a measure. If the Senate does nothing along the lines of relief-legislation, the responsibility for its failure will be narrowed-down to the eight standpatters on its Finance Committee, primarily; and, ultimately, to the regular Republican Senators who framed that particular Committee in that particular way.

The thirteen progressive Republican Senators claimed two places on the Finance Committee—two of the nine places on that Committee reserved for Republican Senators; and they based their claim upon three seemingly strong and satisfactory reasons: First, that, inasmuch as they represent twenty-five per cent. of the whole Republican side of the Senate, they should be allowed twenty-five per cent. of Republican representation on its most important committee; second, that, inasmuch as the people of the land had recently declared themselves in favor of tariff-reductions, the Finance Committee of the Senate should have a majority of its members friendly to the expressed wishes of the people; and, third, that it would be manifestly unfair and unjust to the people who made this demand for the Senate to deliberately pack its Finance Committee against them; but the "regulars" turned deaf ears to the demands of both the people and their progressive Republican representatives in the Senate, and proceeded most doggedly and deliberately, if not defiantly, to "pack" its Finance Committee against the very legislation which the people are demanding.

Two places on that Committee filled by progressives would, when combined with the six Democrats on that Committee, have given those in favor of tariff-reductions eight votes in committee and a majority of the Committee. That would have insured favorable reports from that Committee on relief-measures. The regulars knew that and "packed" against it. Let the people "sit-up and take notice!"

KNOWLEDGE OF POVERTY.

(HARRIET PRESCOTT SPOFFORD.)
Many of those who occupy our luxurious homes have but little conception of what poverty is. The French Princess who, when she heard during a famine that the people had no bread, wondered if they could not eat cake, although really she meant oaten cake only, is only an exaggerated representative of many of our women who have never entered the houses of the poor, and know nothing at all of the way the world treats them.

If these ladies who have only lived in the roses and lilies of life, whose hearts are full of kindness, yet who are ignorant of what real deprivation means, should leave their fortunate fashions and go down into the purlieus of poverty, penetrate reeking cellars, climb rickety stairs, see the parched fever patient burning out his delirium alone; see the consumptive on his straw, exposed to the draughts of a leaky roof and broken window, without nourishment or dainty; see the hearty children hungry still on the daily division of a single loaf; see hopeless girls, wrapped in shawls and without fires, sewing for lief as if they saw the monsters that stalked behind them; see mothers aching for their children, and fathers empty handed and cursing their fate; see all the horrid, piercing sights of want—of want whose neighbor on the one hand is death, and on the other is crime—then we think, their hearts would be sore among their treasures unless they could do something to relieve a little share of the trouble with which every great city is catcombed.

There are many of our wealthy women, let it be repeated, who, though they have heard of poverty, are so unacquainted with its actual resemblance as to be able to form no idea of the real state of things.

But on the other hand, there are just as many more who make it their business to be informed of all this dark and sad underlife, and who spend a good part of their days in giving and devising, and assuaging the pain there still must be in spite of them.

Coburn Players At Normal.

On Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock the Coburn players will be at the State Normal College and give Percy MacKaye's poetic comedy, "The Canterbury Pilgrims." The play will be given in Peabody Park, where nature has provided most ideal surroundings for performances of this nature. The young ladies, under whose auspices the play will be given, are expecting the large attendance that the performance, no doubt, deserves.

THE CANTERBURY TALES.

As the Coburn Players are to present Percy MacKaye's poetic comedy, "The Canterbury Pilgrims," at Peabody Park, Normal College, Saturday, May 13th, 8:30 o'clock, it is interesting to refresh one's mind on Chaucer, his "Canterbury Tales" and the period in which he lived. Mr. MacKaye's play is based on the characters of the Prologue and what might have happened during their pilgrimage to Canterbury.

Chaucer is the father of English Poetry, the maker of an epoch, and the founder of a poetical tradition continued and handed down to us by Spencer, Shakespeare, and Milton.

There were two things that Chaucer was intensely fond of—study and nature. When the month of May came and nature was overflowing with joy and music, he shut his books and went out into the fields to spend the day in the open air and sunshine, among flowers and trees and green grass and singing birds. His masterpiece, "The Canterbury Tales," is all of the open air and he imagines them to be told by the pilgrims on the way to the shrine of Thomas a Becket, as they ambled easily along the green lanes which were then the only roads between London and Canterbury. One evening in April, nine and twenty pilgrims to the shrine met in Southwark, which was then a large country village on the Surrey side of London Bridge. They put up at the well-known Tabard Inn in High Street. After dinner when the "reckonings" had been made, and the men were merry over their wine, Harry Bailey, the host, a 'large' man with bright eyes and frank, bold speech, proposes that they should all ride together to Canterbury, as robbers were always about, and the roads were never safe, and that each pilgrim should tell two tales going and two returning.

Only four and twenty tales remain to us. The prologue tells the story of their meeting and Harry Bailey's proposal; and it also gives a detailed description of the appearance, dress, manners and character of each of the motley collection of pilgrims.

The form of the drama has neither been invented nor imported into England in the Fourteenth century; had it been, there is little doubt that so sympathetic, observant and many-sided a man as Chaucer would have availed himself of it. But, even as his poetry is, Mr. Marsh is right in saying that "Chaucer may fairly be said to be not only the earliest dramatic genius of Modern Europe, but to have been a dramatist before that which is technically known as the existing drama was invented."

Buildings At Children's Home.

Dr. T. F. Marr went to Charlotte this afternoon for a conference with several of the leading Methodists of that city with the hope of inducing them to erect a nice building at the Children's Home here. The Methodists of High Point and Greensboro have each promised to put up suitable structures at the Home—Winston Sentinel.

Dead men tell no tales, but lots of tales are told about them.

"A simpton I surely am.
My colleague I will see.
A fellow well informed he is On ornithology."

His partner blinked and made reply:
"Tis hardly in my line.
All kinds of riddles I denounce
But those that I design."

"I've met renown in many lands.
My ardent friend declare Riddles I make electricity
And hold enchanted the fair."

"A handsome Spanish maiden once Pledged me her sacred word She'd give her diamond pin to guess My riddles that she'd heard."

"To tell it really as it chanced I'd stop almost too long.
But after this acknowledgment
I moved among the throng."

"As if I really trod on air.
My foot scarce touched the ground.
I'd whisper: 'Cheer up now, my man!
At last success you've found.'"

"This record of the past forgive.
I see I have digressed."
His tone dramatic now became:
"I fear, dear sir, you jest."

Will in his song rejoice."

DAILY MARKET REPORTS

WEATHER FORECAST.

Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and East Texas, fair.

West Texas fair; cooler in Pan Handle district.

Eastern Belt, fair.

Weather map shows fair for the entire belt except Southwest Texas and Eastern Tennessee, where it is cloudy. No rain except a few light showers in North Carolina. Temperatures higher and seasonable except over Carolinas, where it is still low.

SPOT MARKETS.

Galveston, steady 1-8 up; middling 15 7-16; sales 207.

Mobile, firm, unchanged 15c; sales 30. Memphis, firm, unchanged 15 3-8; sales 1,700.

Augusta, quiet, unchanged 15 1-2; no sales. Houston, steady 1-8 up, middling 15 1-4, sales 30.

THE TEXAS CROPS.

New Orleans, La., May 9.—Reports from Texas crops are generally disappointing. Cold, wet weather seems to have caused more delay than was thought and more replanting necessary. Some reports make season as much as three weeks late. This adds to strength of market.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Ill., May 9.—Wheat: The market ruled easier throughout the session with the Northwestern markets distinctly weak owing to fairly general rains throughout both the Canadian and American Northwest. The legitimate situation is certainly conducive to lower prices, but the situation of the May delivery is still considered a menace by short sellers.

Corn: Prices ruled fractionally lower though the market was steady considering the weakness in wheat. Some of yesterday's sellers were replacing and this class of buying furnished the best support. The country was a moderate seller and seaboard reported export business impossible, bids being one cent or more out of line. We see no reason to change our opinion regarding the ultimate course of prices and advise sales on all good rallies.

Oats: Commission houses were the best buyers of July on resting orders, but were also selling September. We look for a dragging market.

Provisions: The market ruled lower on rather free selling by local operators and also by commission houses. At the opening there was a moderate demand for lard by stock yards traders.

COTTON LETTER TO J. E. LATHAM.

New Orleans, La., May 9.—As we draw near the last stage of the season, the strength of the supply situation is telling with increasing force on the markets and any move to cover short commitments advances prices. There is at present no sign of organized bull support or manipulation such as we saw last year and prices move up either on spot developments or on scattered buying by spots to cover. Liverpool led today, being about 2 better than due on old crops, spot prices 7 higher, sales 8,000 bales. New crops were one better than due and as in our market, seem sustained for the present merely by the large discount which attracts trade buying.

In the past two years cotton was about 14c during the height of the marketing season, the present high price for spots is constantly before the eye of the consumer and new crops must look cheap by comparison. Generally fair weather prevailed in the belt over night and is indicated in the central and eastern States for tomorrow also. In the Northwestern part of the belt it should become cloudy and unsettled by tomorrow.

Our market opened about 6 up on old crops, unchanged on new crops, but soon eased on political news to the effect that several Americans had been killed in fighting along the Mexican frontier which gave rise to fear of complications. On the whole, however, it is thought that price developments in old crops cannot be much disturbed or prevented even if intervention in Mexico on the part of this country should become a fact. Large exports again today, New Orleans alone clears 12,500, more than today's port receipts.

The May dance down in Dixie, Choose partners, and away; Swing corners in the golden dream Of golden yesterday. The wide halls stand wide open, the doors are open, too, And love laughs up the Dixie vales in loveliness to you.

A very beautiful custom now in vogue throughout this country is the observance of the second Sunday in May as "Mothers' Day." THE GOING, GROWING INDUSTRIES OF GREATER GREENSBORO.

III. THE STANDARD TABLE COMPANY.

One of the most rapidly growing industries of Greater Greensboro is the Standard Table Company, of which E. P. Wharton is President and C. B. Kellenberger is Secretary and Treasurer and General Manager.

The plant of the Standard Table Company is situated on West Lee street and fronts on the Southern Railway. This industry was first started eight or ten years ago, but failed about three years ago. It was taken over by E. P. Wharton, who was a large creditor of the concern; and after casting about for some time for a manager for the business Mr. Wharton induced C. B. Kellenberger to come to Greensboro from Pennsylvania and take charge of the plant. The name of the concern was changed to Standard Table Company. It had formerly been conducted under the name of Greensboro Table Company.

Mr. Kellenberger is a practical manufacturer of tables, being thoroughly familiar with all the details of the business; and he is, also, a careful and successful business man. Under his management this concern has made wonderful progress in a little more than two years. It was reorganized during a period of "hard times"—that is, since the "panic" of 1907 came upon the country—and this fact makes the success of the business all the more remarkable.

As to the concrete results which have been accomplished, they are forcibly shown by the fact that the Standard Table Company is now doing a gross business amounting to more than $150,000 per annum, while the largest annual business in the history of the old concern amounted to, probably not more than $60,000. Mr. Kellenberger believes that the business this year will amount to fully three times the business of any year under the old management.

The Standard Table Company employs more than one hundred persons, including the salesmen who sell the products of the concern. The factory has a capacity of 75 dining tables per day, or almost 25,000 tables per year. The company is now manufacturing nothing but oak dining tables, and by far the greater part of the product is the round pattern. But few square tables are made. At least 75 styles of tables are made; they are sold at retail at from $10 to $50 each. The products of the factory are of a high grade, no cheap tables being manufactured. In fact, some of the handsomest oak tables made in the United States are turned out of this factory.

The products of the Standard Table Company are sold mainly in the eastern States, but some are sold in the South and as far west as Denver. The plant is now averaging a car load shipment every day and is running on full time and at full capacity.

The process of manufacturing tables is a most interesting one to the uninitiated. The rough lumber goes into the factory at the western end of the plant and passes from the dry kiln through the various processes of manufacture until the finished tables are crated and loaded in the cars at the eastern end of the plant. It requires several weeks, however, to complete the manufacture of a table, as the drying of the varnish on the highest grades is a process which requires some time. None of the details of manufacture are slighted at this plant. The work is thoroughly done in every particular, and the result is a grade of tables which give splendid satisfaction to the trade and to the public. Reliable work and honest dealing is the keynote of this concern's success.

The Standard Table Company's business is steadily expanding, and Manager Kellenberger confidently believes that the capacity of the plant will be taxed within a very short time to fill the orders which are coming in every day. The dry kiln of the plant has already been largely increased in size and thousands of dollars worth of improved machinery added. Fire protection in the shape of a modern sprinkler system has been recently installed at a cost of several thousand dollars. These improvements have been paid for from the profits of the business, showing that it is being operated at a profit to its owners.

The principal factor in the success of the business is Manager Kellenberger, who is the liveliest wire in the table manufacturing business in the Southeast. He has made good and has added another industry to the list of those that are going and growing in Greater Greensboro.

TO TAKE TIME ON RECIPROCITY

Senate Will Not Hurry Consideration of Measure.

SEE CHANGE OF SENTIMENT.

Opponents of the Bill Are Providing Material For Debate—Indications Are That Extra Session Will Last Into July—Progressive Republicans Satisfied With Their Progress.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, May 9.—(Special.)—As the senate intends to take its time to consider the Canadian reciprocity bill it may be quite awhile before we get into an active tariff debate in that body. Of course there is nothing to prevent any senator from making a speech on reciprocity. Several senators talked on the reciprocity bill in the last congress while it was still in committee. They can do the same thing this season. But, even so, it will not shorten the debate.

The delay which has already occurred and the prospects of further delay in the senate indicate that the session will last well into July. One reason for holding the bill so long in committee is the fact that a majority of that committee is opposed to the bill, or, at least, that is the way they have been counted. The longer they give to hearings the more material the opponents will have to delay the bill in the senate.

That is the only theory to account for the delay, although there are indications that the opponents of the bill believe that it is becoming more unpopular throughout the country.

Familiar to Champ.

If there is any particular piece of literature with which Champ Clark is getting reasonably familiar it is that remark made away back in 1894 about tearing down the custom houses. Every Republican desiring to make a hit rings in that old speech. It is getting to be as familiar to Clark as anything he ever uttered.

Well Satisfied.

Utmost satisfaction is expressed by the progressive Republicans over the advance which is being made toward their policies. Circulars and statements issued from time to time show that the people are making many advances in different states toward the initiative and referendum, the direct election of all officers and of those advanced doctrines which were derided as Utopian a few years ago.

Senator Bourne, chairman of the progressive Republicans, is most optimistic over the success thus far attained. In the press notices which are issued it is observed that progressive Democracy is also given prominence. "There are no party differences in this great movement," declares Bourne.

More Annexation Talk.

Congressman Prince of Illinois in a speech denouncing Canadian reciprocity declared that Champ Clark was right when he said it meant ultimate annexation. It is true that officials on both sides of the line rush in and assert that annexation is not intended, but the people are thinking a great deal about it. Those who have seen the hundreds and thousands of Americans in Canada know that they would be willing to see the peaceful annexation of Canada, or at least the western portion.

If the boundary line is ever changed it will not be fifty-four forty, but the line which may be claimed as a part of Peary's discovery.

Locating a Fault.

Congressman Sims was making a speech, and Mann of Illinois interrupted him. "I am within twenty feet of the gentleman and cannot hear him," said Mann, who wanted to show that the house was already too large.

"I cannot talk any louder," said the Tennesseean.

"I knew it. The fault is in the size of the house," shouted Mann. "I knew it was not the fault of the size of my mouth," shouted back Sims, and those who heard the colloquy thought Mann had proved his point.

Friendly With Insurgents.

Those who expected that Uncle Joe Cannon would come down from the speaker's chair and tear into the insurgents who were so severe on him in the last congress have been very much disappointed. Beyond asking "Who is that pinhead?" when a new insurgent voted against the caucus nominee for minority leader he has been as suave as possible to the insurgents. He gets into the debates with them and often is found supporting them and their arguments.

Many insurgents found themselves on the same side with Uncle Joe during the consideration of different measures which have passed. Perhaps upon a closer view of each other these warring members may find they are not as bad as each believed the other.

Berger is Not Lost.

Congressman Berger of Wisconsin, the only really pronounced Socialist that has been elected to congress, is not overshadowed by the fact that he is a minority of one. He can introduce resolutions, and they are generally sensational enough to cause comment, although it has been determined to allow all of them to sleep quietly in the committee. Berger will make a speech some day which may give him still more notoriety.

PATRIOTS TAKE BOTH ENDS OF DOUBLE-HEADER

Rabbit Doyle's two-base hit broke up the last game yesterday afternoon, and gave the Patriots the second victory of the day over the Electricians. The scores of the two games were 7 to 2 and 7 to 6, respectively. In the first game the locals had a walk-over but the second was a more exciting contest.

Greensboro fans had about lost hope, in the last of the double-header, but Eldridge and Manager Doyle reenacted the famous story of "Won in the Ninth," and in a spectacular finish made three runs and won the game.

Manager Kelly sent three different men to the box but all were in bad form. In the first inning of the second game, becoming disgusted with his pitchers, he followed the example of Laval and went on the knoll himself. To his credit it must be said he did better work than any of the three men who occupied the mound before him. But for errors of his team he would have won the second game.

First Game.

The Patriots took the field with Morrisey on the knoll. Anderson did not score in the first. The Patriots in this inning landed on Farmer for three hits, and obtained three more off Saltsinger's delivery when he succeeded. Five runs were secured and the game was sewed up. In the second the Patriots again started off batting Saltsinger and he was succeeded by Kuse. Kuse twirled the remainder of the game and did good work, but the Patriots got in an occasional hit and added two runs in the fourth. Morrisey was in good form and kept the Electricians' hits well scattered.

Features of the first game were two double plays—one by each team; the heavy batting of the Patriots and good outfielding of the locals. Doyle's men had the visitors up in the air and outplayed them at every stage of the game.

Second Game.

When one looks at the hits it is difficult to understand how the Patriots won the game. They did it by a combination of opportune hitting and taking advantage of errors by the Electricians. Eldridge was on the mound for the locals and he allowed hits enough for two games, but a series of misfortunes for Kelly's men kept them from getting as many runs as they should have made. One time when it was thought Anderson had two runs it was discovered that both runners had "cut-third" and were called out.

The Patriot made four runs in the first of this game and Kelly supplanted Kuse in the box. The jovial Anderson manager pitched good ball and the spectators at the end of the eighth inning thought he had won and began to leave. In the final half of the ninth, with one man out, Nippert got to first on W. Kelly's error, Eldridge singled. Rickard hit to McCarthy, who threw wild to first, Nippert scoring. Doyle then lined out a lovely two-bagger over shortstop's head and the game was ended with a score of 7 to 6 in Greensboro's favor. Victory had been wrested from apparent defeat and Jim Kelly's reputation as a pitcher received a severe blow.

This game was featured by McCarthy's wonderful batting, he getting four 2-base hits in five times at bat.

he has not a hurry order will be sent the team's tailor and "Tony" will pitch at least one game this week.

The news that "Doctor" Tony will be on the mound again this season will be hailed with delight by Greensboro fans. For some time he has been considering a contract with Charlotte and the Greensboro fans were restless for fear he would be allowed to don a Hornet covering. His addition will put snap and ginger in the entire team.

TWINS PUSHING MUSICIANS DOWN

Spartanburg, S. C., May 9.—Though in general Spartanburg's fielding was poor the game was pretty and interesting. Much hitting was done and a number of sensational catches were made. Four hits and a base on balls in the fourth off Swindell allowed most of locals runs while the visitors took their tallies in smaller but more frequent doses.

DIAMOND DUST

One game will do today.

Kelly is so good-natured, we hate to do it.

Welcome to Dr. Walters, the premier pitcher of this league.

Every Veteran of the Civil War is invited to see the games today as the clubs' guests.

What of a man who gets four two-baggers in one game?

There should be a big crowd out for the holiday game at 4:30 today.

It was pathetic to see the expression on Kelly's handsome face when Doyle lined out the hit that broke up the game.

There is "some class" to the way Rabbit Doyle picks up those hot ones and twirls them to first.

Doak's figure and voice at third remind one of other seasons.

"So glad to have you with us again, Tony."

Glad there is only one McCarthy among those Electricians.

We are moving upward. Charlotte will please give us room to get by.

"Won in the Ninth" is not always fiction. Yesterday afternoon it was a reality—likewise a tragedy for the Andersonians.

VETERANS' DAY THIS AFTERNOON

This will be Veterans day at Cone park, and every one who wore the grey and marched under the "Stars and Bars" in the War Between the States is invited to attend the Greensboro-Anderson game at 4:30 this afternoon. No admittance will be charged, and the managers of the two teams hope that every Civil War veteran in the city will attend as their guests. The south grandstand will be set apart for them and their comfort will be looked after carefully.

The third game of the series with the Electricians this afternoon promises to be a lively contest. The Patriots are anxious to get the whole series, while the Electricians do not wish to be whitewashed.

This being Memorial day and a general holiday, many of the people in offices and public work will have the opportunity of getting out to the game.
